Introduction to delineation of appearance and character in natal astrology. The following document is a hand-written analysis of Nicholas Trist, using the principles of medieval predictive astrology. The discipline of natal astrology focuses on the fate of an individual based on a horoscope cast for the moment of birth. Within natal astrology, the 1st house occupying the eastern horizon at birth describes the native: physical vitality, appearance, and character. Between the Hellenistic and Medieval eras several specialized models were developed to assess these characteristics. They include longevity (vitality and length of life), physiognomy (form and shape of the face and body), victor of the chart (overall life purpose), manners (social conduct including ethical behavior), and temperament (elemental mix of fire, earth, air, and water with applications in medical astrology). Prior research has presented models and results for longevity (A Rectification Manual: The American Presidency, Chapter 4) and physiognomy (Astrological Physiognomy: History and Sources & Astrological Physiognomy: Empirical Tests of the Leo Rising Decan).

Victor of the Chart. Included are two competing models for computing the victor of the chart said to be the single most powerful planet in the horoscope. According to Plato's follower Porphyry, by configuration in the natal horoscope the planet signifying the victor of the chart shows the life choice made by the soul prior to incarnation. Plato explains the details of his soul model in The Myth of Er found in the closing pages of his work The Republic. Porphyry and his peer Antiochus offer specific rules for determining the victor of the chart. The method of Antiochus/Porphyry is compared to a later method for determining the victor suggested by the Jewish Rabbi Abraham ben Meir ibn Ezra, a philosopher and astrologer active in the 12th century. For a discussion of these two models, see the companion paper Victor of the Chart: Testing Methods of Antiochus/Porphyry and Ibn Ezra, which serves as a key to what is presented here.

Manners. Plato was not alone among Greek philosophers in conceiving models for the soul. Aristotle's model of vegetative, sensitive, and intellective soul levels (assigned respectively to the plant, animal, and human kingdoms) was taken up by Ptolemy, who found a correspondence between the sensitive and intellective soul and Moon and Mercury in the natal horoscope. Configuration of the Moon and Mercury, with special emphasis given to their rulers, is a second method for analyzing the soul. Ptolemy introduces this model in Tetrabiblos III.13 "Of the Quality of the Soul." Subsequent authors refer to this model as "Significators of the Soul" or "Manners." A summary template for the Moon and Mercury is presented in the paper and will be further developed in future versions.

Nicholas Trist

Nicholas Trist (June 2, 1800 – February 11, 1874)

Nicholas Philip Trist was an American lawyer, diplomat, planter, and businessman. Even though dismissed by President James K. Polk as the negotiator with the Mexican government, he negotiated the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo in 1848, which ended the Mexican-American War. The U.S. conquered Mexican territory and vastly expanded the United States. All or part of ten current states were carved out of former Mexican territory.

Trist was born in Charlottesville, Virginia. He was the son of Hore Browse Trist, a lawyer, and Mary Brown. His grandmother, Elizabeth House Trist, was an acquaintance of Thomas Jefferson. Trist attended West Point but did not graduate and then studied law under Thomas Jefferson. Trist served as Jefferson's personal secretary in the 1820s and became an executor of his estate.

Trist married Virginia Jefferson Randolph, Thomas Jefferson's granddaughter, on September 11, 1824. They had three children, Martha Jefferson Trist Burke (1826-1915), Thomas Jefferson Trist (1828-1890), and Hore Browse Trist (1832-1896).

He served as a clerk in the U.S. State Department in 1828-1832, including a one-year assignment in 1831 as private secretary to Andrew Jackson, whom he greatly admired. Trist provided a conduit of communication for James Madison to President Jackson.

Trist was appointed U.S. consul in Havana, Cuba, a colony of Spain, by President Jackson, in which capacity he served from 1833 to 1841. Shortly after arriving there in 1833, Trist invested in a sugar plantation deal that went bad. He made no secret of his pro-slavery views. According to members of a British commission sent to Cuba to investigate violations of the treaty ending the African slave trade, Trist became involved in the creation of false documents designed to mask illegal sales of Africans into bondage. For a time, Trist also served as the consul in Cuba for Portugal, another country whose nationals were active in the illegal slave trade.

As consul, Trist became unpopular with New England ship captains who believed he was more interested in maintaining good relations with Cuban officials than defending their interests. Captains and merchants pressed members of Congress for Trist's removal. In late 1838 or early 1839, the British commissioner Dr. Richard Robert Madden wrote U.S. abolitionists about Trist's misuse of his post to promote slavery and earn fees from the fraudulent document schemes. A pamphlet detailing Madden's charges was published shortly before the beginning of the sensational Amistad affair, when Africans sold into slavery in Cuba managed to seize control of the schooner in which they were being transported from Havana to provincial plantations. Madden traveled to the United States, where he gave expert testimony in the trial of the Amistad Africans, explaining how false documents were used to make it appear the Africans were Cuban-born slaves.

This exposure of the activities of the U.S. Consul General, coupled with the complaints of ship captains, caused a Congressional investigation and eventual recall of Trist in 1840. Neither Trist nor Madden is depicted in the film Amistad directed by Steven Spielberg, although there are brief Cuba scenes that suggest how the illegal slave trade was carried on there.

Trist remained in Cuba till 1845, when President James K. Polk appointed him as a chief clerk in the State Department. In 1847, during the Mexican–American War, President Polk sent Trist to negotiate with the government of Mexico. He was ordered to arrange an armistice with Mexico offering a restitution up to $30 million U.S. dollars, depending on whether he could obtain Baja California and additional southern territory along with the already planned acquisitions of Alta California, the Nueces Strip, and New Mexico. If he could not obtain Baja California and additional territory to the south, then he was instructed to offer $20 million. President Polk was unhappy with his envoy's conduct which prompted him to order Trist to return to the United States. General Winfield Scott was also unhappy with Trist's presence in Mexico, although he and Scott quickly reconciled and began a lifelong friendship.

However, the wily diplomat ignored the instructions to leave Mexico. He wrote a 65-page letter back to Washington, D.C. explaining his reasons for staying in Mexico. He capitalized on a brilliant opportunity to continue bargaining with Santa Anna offering $15 million. Trist successfully negotiated the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo on February 2, 1848. Trist's negotiation was controversial among expansionist Democrats since he had ignored Polk's instructions and settled on a smaller cession of Mexican territory than many expansionists wanted and felt he could have obtained. A part of this instruction was to specifically include Baja California. However, as part of the negotiations, Trist drew the line directly west from Yuma to Tijuana/San Diego instead of from Yuma south to the Gulf of California, which left all of Baja California, though almost separate from, a part of Mexico, and Polk was furious. In the end, Polk reluctantly approved the treaty since he wanted to have it signed, sealed and delivered to Congress during his presidency. Trist later commented on the treaty:

My feeling of shame as an American was far stronger than the Mexicans' could be.

Upon return to Washington, Trist was immediately fired for his insubordination, and his expenses since the time of the recall order were not paid. Trist did not recover his expenses until 1871. Despite a commitment to free trade, Trist supported Republican Abraham Lincoln for U.S. President in 1860. While the Lincoln administration did not offer Trist any patronage, he did serve as postmaster of Alexandria, Virginia, during the Grant administration.

He died in Alexandria on February 11, 1874, aged 73.

Stage I. Determine the Ascendant sign

Firdaria

The following life event matches favor the nocturnal Firdaria sequence.

Jupiter-Sun. Marriage to Jefferson's granddaughter.

Jupiter-Mercury. First clerkship position at State Department

Major Mars – Tenure as consul at Cuba

North Node/South Node – Amistad slave revolt and recall as consul at Cuba

Major Sun – period of delayed fame begins with position in James Polk's State Department

In addition, nearly all Mercury minor and major period time key career milestones; Mercury is the victor of the horoscope.

Conclusion: Figure is nocturnal.

Moon's Sign and Configuration

| Time | Moon's Degree | Sect | Configuration |
|----------|---------------|------|---|
| 12:00 AM | 00LI55 | N | Moon applies to Jupiter |
| 4:43 AM | 3LI38 | D | Moon applies to Jupiter |
| 8:29 AM | 5LI49 | D | Moon separates from Jupiter and applies to Saturn |
| 9:13 AM | 6LI15 | D | Moon separates from Saturn and applies to the Sun |
| 7:12 PM | 12LI06 | N | Moon separates from Saturn and applies to the Sun |
| 7:15 PM | 12LI07 | N | Moon separates from the Sun and is VOC |
| 12:00 AM | 14LI55 | N | Moon separates from the Sun and is VOC |

For a nocturnal figure, Moon is either in morning nocturnal hours (00LI55 – 3LI38) or evening nocturnal hours (12LI06 – 14LI55). The following transits suggest morning nocturnal hours:

10-Mar-1848. Senate ratification of Treat of Guadalupe Hidalgo. trNorth Node 1LI13

11-Feb-1874. Death from stroke. trJupiter 00LI40.

For morning nocturnal hours the possible Ascendant degree range is 28AQ – PI – AR – TA – 11GE.

Physiognomy

Shape of the head is not squared off (fixed signs) nor ovate (cardinal signs) but round and circular which suggests the mutable sign of Pisces. It does appear the eyes are slightly sunken which is a Pisces signature. Choose Pisces as a trial Ascendant. Note the Moon's degree range for a Pisces Ascendant is 00LI57 to 1LI40 which is very similar to the two measurements listed above.

Configuration of the Chart

Pisces rising places lord Jupiter/Cancer in the 5th house whose significations include emissaries and negotiators. In addition, whether Mercury in the 3rd by whole sign houses or Sun in the 3rd by quadrant houses, the 3rd house is assigned to communications and short-term travel. In my research I have found that the post office and mail is a specific example of this theme. Trist's professional career included being in charge of a post office.

Conclusion: Choose Pisces as the trial Ascendant.

Releaser and kadukhudhāh. Figure is nocturnal Moon/Libra is preferred but conjunct the South Node raises questions. Consider instead the Sun/Gemini/4th as releaser. Bound lord Jupiter makes no Ptolemaic aspect but is in antisicia relationship to the sign (Cancer/Gemini conjunct by antisicia). If Jupiter, then Jupiter grants 79 major years and Mars deducts 15 minor years by trine aspect receiving Jupiter by bound for a net projection of 64yrs. Short by almost 10 years.

Consider sign lord Mercury Taurus, received by Venus/Taurus, and just past morning helical rising. Mercury grants 76 major years, Saturn deducts 30 minor years by square aspect, Venus adds 8 minor years by conjunction. Net projection is 54yrs. He did live longer but it is interesting to see that within 2 months of his 46th birthday (76/Mercury – 30/Saturn = 46yrs), the Mexican War started which enveloped Trist as its negotiator and ended in his dismissal without pay based on President Polk's actions. This demonstrates the negative influence of the deduction of Saturn's minor years on Trist's life. Between age 46 and 54, the addition of Venus' minor years allowed Trist to hold on somehow despite he was virtually broke. At age 55 he took a job as a railroad clerk and lived out the balance of his life in obscurity, rising slightly in stature in 1870 when President Grant appointed him postmaster of Alexandria.

Victor of the Chart: Mercury/Taurus

Porphry's Stage 1 criteria highlight Mercury and Jupiter as the two highest scoring candidates. Arguments can be made for either planet and on a blind reading I would probably favor Jupiter/Cancer in the sign of exaltation. Placement in the 5th house – associated with diplomacy – is a match to his successful negotiation of the end of the Mexican War.

Based on life affairs matched to Firdaria main and minor periods as well as longevity findings, I favor Mercury over Jupiter. Firdaria matches include (Saturn-Mercury) first visit to Monticello; (Jupiter-Mercury) State Department clerkship position; (Sun-Mercury) traveled to Mexico to negotiate end of Mexican War; and (Venus-Mercury) took job as railroad clerk).

Manners: Venus (sign-based); Saturn (bound-based).
